

Continuous Casting

- Continuous casting, also called strand casting, is the process whereby molten metal is solidified into a "semi finished" billet, bloom, or slab for subsequent rolling in the finishing mills. Prior to the introduction of continuous casting in the 1950s, steel was poured into stationary molds to form ingots.

Direct-Chill Casting of Light Alloys John Grandfield,D. G. Eskin,Ian Bainbridge,2013-06-25 Direct chill casting is the major production route for wrought aluminium and magnesium alloys that are later deformed rolled extruded forged to the final products To aid in this process this book provides comprehensive coverage on topics such as the history of process development in this field industrial applications including vertical and horizontal casting melt preparation fundamentals of solidification in DC casting and more The first book targeted for the industrial researcher and practitioner it pulls together the practice and process of physics with the goal of improving process performance

Mechatronic Systems 2004 Reza Moheimani,2006-01-10 SPONGE IRON PRODUCTION BY DIRECT REDUCTION OF IRON OXIDE, SECOND EDITION CHATTERJEE, AMIT,2012-09-12 This book provides a fascinating study of the very important emerging field of direct reduction in which iron ore is directly reduced in the solid state using either natural gas or non coking coal to produce a highly metallised material referred to as sponge iron or direct reduced iron This intermediate product is subsequently melted in electric arc furnaces or induction furnaces sometimes even in basic oxygen furnaces to produce liquid steel Such a process combination enables steel to be produced without using coking coal which is an expensive input in the normal blast furnace basic oxygen furnace route of steelmaking adopted in integrated steel plants The book offers comprehensive coverage and critical assessment of various coal based and gas based direct reduction processes Besides dealing with the application of the theoretical principles involved in the thermodynamics and kinetics of direct reduction the book also contains some worked out examples on sponge iron production The concluding part of this seminal book summarises the present and future scenario of direct reduction including the use of gas generated from coal in direct reduction processes The book is primarily intended for the undergraduate and postgraduate students of metallurgical engineering It is also a must read for researchers technologists and process metallurgists engaged in the rapidly developing field of direct reduction of iron oxides which is of critical importance for India and other developing nations that are beginning to play a major role in global steelmaking

Effects of the Merger of ISPAT, LNM and ISG to Mittal Steel from Global Steel Industry Focus Ingo von Röpenack, 2012-02-24 By its surprising fast growth the corporation Mittal Steel became a determining factor in the steel business Through the merger with ISG the corporation became the world's biggest steel producer and thus reached a global dimension The deciding question of today is the further development of the steel business The survey conducted by the author explores this question by evaluating key indications of this development and giving predictions for the future development To illuminate the line of possible development theories of globalisation and societal development are applied to the Mittal Steel Corporation In addition theories of strategy and market competition are used to define the profile of the corporation and to show the market position in comparison to other steel corporations Basic strategies to improve the steel industry's vitality and sustainability are formulated
