Abstract— Educational Data Mining (EDM) is an emerging inter-disciplinary research area that involves education and computer science. EDM employs data mining tools and techniques, on large datasets related to education, to extract meaningful and useful information. EDM works toward the improvement of educational processes by introducing better and effective learning practices. EDM methods refer to the set of methods that are used for building models/applications. This article presents an extensive literature survey of EDM methods. The article also discusses research trends and challenges in EDM. This insight into EDM attempts to provide useful and valuable information to researchers interested in furthering the field of EDM.

Keywords— Educational Data Mining (EDM); Prediction; Relationship Mining; Structure Discovery

I. INTRODUCTION

Educational Data Mining (EDM) is concerned with the employment of data mining tools and techniques on the data gathered through an educational activity. The prominent tasks in data mining are prediction, association rule mining, clustering, and outlier analysis[1]. Data mining employs its methods on data from various domains. For EDM, the datasets are taken from the educational domain. EDM extracts useful information from educationally related large datasets. EDM helps in dealing with the issues and problems of the educational environment and processes. International Educational Data Mining Society (IEDMS) defines EDM as: "Educational Data Mining is an emerging discipline, concerned with developing methods for exploring the unique and increasingly large-scale data that come from educational settings, and using those methods to better understand students, and the settings in which they learn in."[2]

Education is one of the most vital elements required for the development of a society. Learning methods providing slower or ineffective education have an impact on the society and development of the country. EDM strives to provide better and new methods of learning that are more effective than the existing methods for imparting education. Researches in EDM have analyzed important issues like students' drop-out or poor performance in academics and recommended remedies that help in minimizing such issues. The literature establishes the following research objectives of EDM:

- 1) To explore the "Big Data" from the field of education.
- 2) To solve the problems related to education.
- 3) To enhance the learner's knowledge and improve learning.
- 4) To help students in achieving success.
- 5) To help institutions in achieving success.

EDM has a specific set of data mining methods that are exclusively applied to the educational data. The term 'EDM Methods' refers to the collection of all such data mining techniques that are used for mining the educational data. The gathered educational data is preprocessed, and then EDM methods are applied to it to extract useful information. EDM methods may be categorized, as shown in figure 1, based on the classifications by various authors in [3]–[9]. There are six broad divisions as follows:

- 1) Distillation of data for human judgment
- 2) Prediction methods
- 3) Relationship mining methods
- 4) Structure discovery methods
- 5) Discovery with models
- 6) Miscellaneous other methods

This article categorically surveys all the methods described in the EDM literature by reviewing important contributions of the last 10 years. The rest of the article is organized as follows. Section II presents the techniques used for the distillation of data for human judgement. Section III discusses the various prediction methods employed in EDM. Section IV elaborates on the various relationship mining techniques used in EDM. Section V reviews the techniques used in EDM for the discovery of structure in the educational dataset. Section VI brief the models used for educational data mining. Section VII converse about the remaining methods employed in EDM, which could not be categorized. Section VIII presents the research trend and directions for future research in EDM. Finally, section IX concludes the article.

II. DISTILLATION OF DATA FOR HUMAN JUDGMENT

Distillation of data for human judgment implies highlighting of useful information through the representation of data. It can be done using summarization, visualization, and interactive interfaces[10]. Basic statistical techniques and graph plotting methods are the most common tools used for effective visualization[11]. The visualized data enable humans to identify patterns and thus help quick decision-
