Citizenship as a Challenge , 2021-11-29 Citizenship is one of the most important legacies of human development It raises the human status from a biological condition into a cultural moral political and rationalistic one It is a constantly evolving process which at each new turn adds complexity to human existence After the breakthroughs of the eighteenth century with the first steps in recognition of civil and political rights and of the twentieth century with the advancement of social rights and the emergence of cultural and environmental rights one could conclude that the twenty first century would see an enlargement of citizenship ideas and ideals Has this indeed happened Where are we now when it comes to identifying ourselves as citizens Varying across several disciplines this volume addresses the complexities of citizenship and our attempts to make sense of them

The World: Literary Perspectives on the Global Contemporary* William G. Welty,2023-01-31 Much of the work done on the Post45 literary field carries an implicitly Americanist perspective Even the name of the field suggests a certain literary history with certain assumptions and blind spots about national spaces identities and histories But what would Post45 look like when considered from outside of the United States How do the current contours of the field exclude certain voices either in the United States or elsewhere in the world And how would such new perspectives shift the beginning and possible endpoint of that literary period What new narratives of the contemporary emerge if we begin telling the story in a different year or from a different national or global perspective This collection attempts to re frame the discussions in Post45 by engaging with non American writers texts and perspectives Additionally productive conversations emerge by attempting to think of canonical American writers like Mark Twain and Ishmael Reed from other national and global perspectives The authors consider both the ways texts themselves as well as their reception histories approach and challenge our understandings of the contemporary Ultimately the collection interrogates prevailing narratives of history culture identity and space within the Post45 field In so doing it re considers the historical periodization of the field which currently covers approximately 75 years of literary history The resulting essays thus work towards a new intertwined narrative about what defines the contemporary and how national and global literatures fit into that moment of world history
