Rolling Back Malaria World Bank, 2005 There are more than 1.1 million deaths per year from malaria mostly among children less than five years old The disease is preventable and curable with available technologies but in the absence of strong and sustained malaria control efforts coverage with effective interventions is low particularly among the poor Malaria impairs economic growth and human development in many of the World Bank's client countries particularly in Sub-Saharan Africa The Bank has the capacity to do a lot more than it has in malaria control including financing policy advice and implementation support It will support countries to develop and implement programs to i cost effectively reduce morbidity productivity losses in multiple sectors and mortality due to malaria particularly among the poor and among children and pregnant women and ii address the challenges of regional and global public goods

global financial crisis and shows how the Monterrey Consensus of 2002 which once again made the UN a forum for global economic issues gave serious consideration to the concerns of developing countries and set many goals that might have helped to stave off the global financial crisis if they had been more actively pursued Professor Ocampo also examines the UN's role in the wake of the global financial meltdown particularly with regard to the Doha follow up Conference and the Commission of Experts on Reforms of the International Monetary and Financial System convened by the General Assembly and led by Joseph Stiglitz In spite of some resistance to these initiatives from the United States and other developed countries Professor Ocampo advocates in this essay for a more influential role for the UN's institutions in global financial reform especially in light of their superior track record in anticipating economic problems resulting from the inherent tendency of financial markets to experience boom bust cycles The 2008 2009 volumes of ARUNA therefore also devote considerable attention to the financial crisis as well as other international crises Among the documents in the 2008 2009 volumes are the complete General Assembly resolutions as well as the Report and Resolutions of the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council ECOSOC Annual Reports of note include reports of the United Nations Children's Fund UNICEF the UN Development Programme and UN Population Fund the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights the UN High Commissioner for Refugees the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugee in the Near East and the World Food Programme Mr Muller and Dr Sauvant have also selected progress reports on key peacekeeping peace building and political missions including those for Afghanistan the Democratic Republic of the Congo Haiti Iraq Kosovo the Middle East Somalia Sudan and West Africa Each annual edition of ARUNA is introduced by a Guest Author a distinguished expert on UN affairs who highlights the outstanding themes of the year in review Together with an overview provided by the editors this introduction is intended to facilitate access to the material and above all to make it easier for users of ARUNA to see the forest for the trees As has been mentioned above ARUNA is fortunate this year to have Jose Antonio Ocampo as the author of its introduction but the roster of distinguished experts who have contributed this introduction in the past is also worthy of mention Jeffrey D Sachs ARUNA 2007 2008 edition Professor Jeffrey D Sachs is Director of the Earth Institute at Columbia University and Special Advisor to the Secretary General of the UN on the Millennium Development Goals Professor Sachs's introduction to ARUNA 2007 2008 was titled Towards a New Global Protocol on Climate Change in which he argued that solving the climate change problem will demand four steps scientific consensus public awareness the development of alternative technologies and a global framework for action He dealt in particular with the science underpinning the negotiations for a new global protocol on climate change as a successor to the Kyoto Protocol Professor Sachs argued that climate change crises can only be solved through the goals leadership and treaty mechanisms of the UN Edward C Luck ARUNA 2006 2007 edition Professor Edward C Luck is UN Special Advisor on the Responsibility to Protect and Vice President and Director of Studies at the International Peace Academy From 1984 to 1994 he served as President and Chief Executive Officer of the UN Association of the USA UNA USA Professor Luck's introduction to ARUNA 2006 2007 covered The responsible sovereign and the responsibility to protect in which he addressed the scope and content of what was agreed at the 2005 World Summit the implications of the responsibility to protect RtoP for notions of state sovereignty and some of the conceptual architectural and policy challenges then facing UN Secretary General Ban Ki moon's commitment to operationalizing the responsibility to protect and translating it from words to deeds Louise Frechette ARUNA 2005 2006 edition Ms Louise Frechette is Distinguished Fellow at the Centre for International Governance Innovation Waterloo Ontario Until March 2006 she was the first Deputy Secretary General of the UN before that she was Permanent Representative of Canada to the UN Ms Frechette's introduction to ARUNA 2005 2006 covered United Nations reform an unfinished story As the first Deputy Secretary General of the UN Ms Frechette was uniquely positioned to undertake a personal assessment of what has changed and what has not changed in the past decade at the UN and why She examined if the UN is functioning better than it was 15 years ago why reform is so difficult to achieve and what the future holds for the institutions Rubens Ricupero ARUNA 2004 2005 edition Mr Rubens Ricupero is Dean of the Fundacno Armando Alvares Penteado FAAP Sao Paulo and was formerly Secretary General of UN Conference on Trade and Development UNCTAD and Minister of Finance of Brazil Mr Ricupero's introduction to ARUNA 2004 2005 covered The difficulty of building consensus in an age of extremes and examined the mysteries of the negotiating process leading to the outcome of the 2005 World Summit Rather than a Grand Bargain of a comprehensive UN reform in the areas of development security and human rights it is argued that the Summit ended more on a note of lamentation and regret over a missed opportunity Mr Ricupero concludes that contrary to the daring proclamation at the outset by the Secretary General the conditions indispensable to succeed were not in place Indeed it was hard to imagine that an ambitious and balanced reform package for the UN could have had any real chance of succeeding

Will a Global Subsidy of Artemisinin-based Combination Treatment (act) for Malaria Delay the Emergence of Resistance and Save Lives? Ramanan Laxminarayan, A. Mead Over, 2005

Abstract Artemisinin based combination treatments ACTs are seen as an important tool in the global effort to roll back malaria With rapidly increasing parasite resistance to chloroquine in many parts of the world there is greater international recognition of the need for both a different antimalarial and a coordinated malaria treatment strategy to ensure that resistance does not needlessly cut short the useful therapeutic life of any successor drug to chloroquine The effectiveness of antimalarial drugs is a global public good of particular value in malarious regions that also are among the most economically impoverished parts of the world Inappropriate drug use in neighboring countries reduces the incentive of any given country to deploy drug regimens that may be rapidly undermined by resistance originating outside their borders Therefore a case can be made for globally coordinated action to protect the effectiveness of these valuable drugs Translating this case to one for a global subsidy is not straightforward On the one hand in the absence of such a subsidy to ensure that ACTs are comparably priced to monotherapies increasing monotherapy of artemisinin and other antimalarials that would be used along with artemisinin in ACT will hasten the demise of this drug On the other hand a global subsidy would greatly increase the use and potential misuse of ACTs and could result in resistance emerging at a more rapid rate This study finds that a subsidy to ACTs is likely to slow the rate of emergence of resistance to artemisinin and partner drugs even if such a subsidy were to increase the use of ACTs significantly This conclusion is robust to alternative assumptions regarding the responsiveness of demand to the lower price for ACTs and a wide range of epidemiological and economic parameters However the simulation results show that a subsidy for two or more ACT combinations is likely to be much more cost effective than a subsidy to a single ACT The only consideration is that the drugs used as partners to artemisinin be unrelated to each other and to artemisinin in mechanism of action and in genetic bases of resistance so that a single mutation cannot encode resistance to both components. Such a subsidy program for ACTs administered globally that reduces reliance on any single combination and discourages monotherapy not only of artemisinin but of any effective antimalarial that could potentially be used as partner drug with artemisinin is likely to be effective and cost effective both in buying time for ACTs and in saving lives. Organization, 2020-04-24 World Health Report 2012 World Health Organization, The World Health Report 2012 the biannual flagship report of the World Health Organization focuses for the first time in its history on the theme of research for better health. Decisions on healthcare are still made without a solid grounding in research evidence and an impetus is required for this state of affairs to change. Aimed at ministers of health, the report provides new ideas, innovative thinking and pragmatic advice on how to strengthen health research systems. WHO and PLoS have launched an initiative to encourage researchers to complement and substantiate the key messages in World Health Report 2012 by creating a special WHO PLoS Collection. PLoS invited the submission of papers especially from low and middle income countries on topics related to strengthening of key functions and components of national health research systems. The World Health Report 2012 focuses on eight specific areas discussed in the editorial within the theme of No Health Without Research. We highlight below some examples of articles previously published in PLoS journals in these specific areas of interest. Now iMedPub brings this collection to you within a book.
