David Clay Large,2007-10-15 In the political history of the past century no city has played a more prominent though often disastrous role than Berlin At the same time Berlin has also been a dynamic center of artistic and intellectual innovation If Paris was the Capital of the Nineteenth Century Berlin was to become the signature city for the next hundred years Once a symbol of modernity in the Thirties it became associated with injustice and the abuse of power After 1945 it became the iconic City of the Cold War Since the fall of the Wall Berlin has again come to represent humanity's aspirations for a new beginning tempered by caution deriving from the traumas of the recent past David Clay Large's definitive history of Berlin is framed by the two German unifications of 1871 and 1990 Between these two events several themes run like a thread through the city's history a persistent inferiority complex a distrust among many ordinary Germans and the national leadership of the unloved city's electric atmosphere fast tempo and tradition of unruliness its status as a magnet for immigrants artists intellectuals and the young the opening up of social economic and ethnic divisions as sharp as the one created by the Wall

Cities and Cinema Barbara Mennel,2019-05-13 The second edition of Cities and Cinema provides an updated survey of films about cities from their significance for modernity at the beginning of the twentieth century to the contemporary relationship between virtual reality and urban space The book demonstrates the importance of the filmic depiction of capitals for national cinemas in the twentieth century and analyzes the transnational transfer of cinematic images surrounding global cities in the twenty first century Cities and Cinema covers the different facets of the cinematic depiction of cities It rehearses distinct methodologies and offers a survey of the history of the cinematic city. The book also deepens our understanding of tropes and narrative conventions that shape films about urban settings and that reflect the transformation of cities throughout the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. Beginning with a discussion of the Weimar street film, it analyzes how the city film defined modernity. The book outlines the sociological context and the aesthetic features of so-called film noir made in 1940s Hollywood and depicting Los Angeles. Paris became the site for the development of auteur cinema which repeatedly depicts characters moving through the city. Tokyo took up noir to signal modern crime. The volume delineates how filmic genres such as science fiction comment on the present by imagining future forms of urban living. After analyzing how cinema captures the relationship between sexual identity and urban anonymity, migration and urban space, and marginalized ethnic and sexual identity in ghetto films, the book emphasizes transnational dynamics and global cities in the twenty-first century. Its conclusion points to the increasing virtual mediation of cities with new media. Cities and Cinema offers a historical overview of the development of films about cities and a theoretical approach to the intersection of urban studies and film studies. This title is designed as a textbook primarily for second-year undergraduate students in Film Media studies, Urban studies, as well as Geography and Planning.
