A Critical Assessment of Contemporary Cosmological Arguments Emanuel Rutten, Ever since Plato philosophers have developed rational arguments for the existence of God In the last decades the philosophical interest in these arguments has grown again significantly In this book cosmological arguments are investigated A cosmological argument derives the existence of God from the fact that there exist caused things In the first part of this book the author argues that these arguments show that it is plausible that the cosmos was brought about by a necessarily existing conscious free being However as is shown as well it does not follow that this being is also the first cause of the whole of reality something typically said of God In the second part of the book a new argument for the existence of a first cause is presented based on the premises of atomism and causalism Subsequently the author proposes a new modal epistemic argument for the existence of a conscious free being who is the first cause of reality Objections to both new arguments are evaluated and refuted The book concludes with the observation that these arguments can be combined with cosmological arguments in order to arrive at a renewed case for theism

Engels Karl Marks, 1887 Aristotle's Moral Realism Reconsidered Pavlos Kontos, 2013-03 This book elaborates a moral realism of phenomenological inspiration by introducing the idea that moral experience primordially constitutes a perceptual grasp of actions and of their solid traces in the world The main thesis is that before any reference to values or to criteria about good and evil that is before any reference to specific ethical outlooks one should explain the very materiality of what necessarily constitutes the moral world These claims are substantiated by means of a text centered interpretation of Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics in dialogue with contemporary moral realism The book concludes with a critique of Heidegger's Gadamer's and Arendt's approaches to Aristotle's ethics
