Extreme Sites Deborah Gans, Claire Weisz, 2004-05-21 Tackling a hot green architectural topic brownfield sites this title asks the essential question how should urban and post industrial sites best be rehabilitated to balance ecological and human needs This issue of AD is devoted to what planners refer to as brownfields These are often sites made toxic through a recipe of urbanism and industry from our great water thoroughfares to our landfills They are often the only sites available to us for planning consideration The book examines the conflict between the demands of ecology and development when reclaiming such sites for re development bringing together multiple viewpoints from different disciplines Includes the internationally renowned Andy Goldsworthy Glenn Murcutt and Renzo Piano It will recast the topic in a fresh and current light that will interest a wide audience from students to practitioners Aerial photographs maps and photo essays will give the visuals a richness and breadth of appeal Green is an architectural buzzword and is viewed as the new parameter for good practice

Archi-Toons Richard T. Bynum, Jr., 2003-06-27 These original cartoons explore the lighter side of architecture design and the construction industry From the Far Side to Dilbert and from lawyer jokes to political humour we have always been able to have a laugh at each other ourselves and our professions However the design community has never really had a cartoon to call its own until now The cartoons cover all members of the construction industry and the book is irreverent in its wit Clearly composed by someone who has been in the business for many years Bynum's observations demonstrate an extensive understanding of the entire business without being one sided or vitriolic
