What Works (and Doesn't) in Reducing Recidivism Edward J. Latessa, Shelley L. Johnson, Deborah Koetzle, 2020-06-08 What Works and Doesn't in Reducing Recidivism offers criminologists and students an evidence based discussion of the latest trends in corrections Experts Latessa

Johnson and Koetzle translate the research and findings about what works and doesn't work in reducing recidivism into understandable concepts and terms presenting them in a way that illustrates the value of research to practice. Over the last several decades research has clearly shown that rehabilitation efforts can be effective in reducing recidivism among criminal offenders but it is clear that treatment is not a one size fits all approach. Offenders vary by gender, age, crime type and or addictions to name but a few ways and these individual needs must be addressed by providers. Finally issues such as leadership quality of staff and evaluation efforts affect the quality and delivery of treatment services. While other texts have addressed issues regarding treatment in corrections this text is unique in that it not only discusses the research on what works but also addresses the implementation issues faced as practitioners move from theory to practice as well as the importance of staff leadership and evaluation efforts. This book synthesizes the vast research for the student interested in correctional rehabilitation as well as for the practitioner working with offenders.

Handbook of Global Urban Health

Igor Vojnovic, Amber Pearson, Gershim Asiki, Geoff DeVerteuil, Adriana Allen, 2019-05-09 Through interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary perspectives and with an emphasis on exploring patterns as well as distinct and unique conditions across the globe this collection examines advanced and cutting edge theoretical and methodological approaches to the study of the health of urban populations. Despite the growing interest in global urban health there are limited resources available that provide an extensive and advanced exploration into the health of urban populations in a transnational context. This volume offers a high quality and comprehensive examination of global urban health issues by leading urban health scholars from around the world. The book brings together a multi disciplinary perspective on urban health with chapter contributions emphasizing disciplines in the social sciences, construction sciences and medical sciences. The co editors of the collection come from a number of different disciplinary backgrounds that have been at the forefront of urban health research including public health, epidemiology, geography, city planning and urban design. The book is intended to be a reference in global urban health for research libraries and faculty collections. It will also be appropriate as a text for university class adoption in upper division under graduate courses and above. The proposed volume is extensive and offers enough breadth and depth to enable it to be used for courses emphasizing a U.S. or wider Western perspective as well as courses on urban health emphasizing a global context.
