Pastoral Capitalism Louise A. Mozingo, 2016-05-27 How business appropriated the pastoral landscape as seen in the corporate campus the corporate estate and the office park By the end of the twentieth century America's suburbs contained more office space than its central cities Many of these corporate workplaces were surrounded somewhat incongruously by verdant vistas of broad lawns and leafy trees In Pastoral Capitalism Louise Mozingo describes the evolution of these central but often ignored features of postwar urbanism in the context of the modern capitalist enterprise These new suburban corporate landscapes emerged from a historical moment when corporations reconceived their management structures the city decentralized and dispersed into low density auto dependent peripheries and the pastoral in the form of leafy residential suburbs triumphed as an American ideal Greenness writes Mozingo was associated with goodness and pastoral capitalism appropriated the suburb's aesthetics and moral code Like the lawn proud suburban homeowner corporations understood a pastoral landscape's capacity to communicate identity status and right mindedness Mozingo distinguishes among three forms of corporate landscapes the corporate campus the corporate estate and the office park and examines suburban corporate landscapes built and inhabited by such companies as Bell Labs General Motors Deere Company and Microsoft She also considers the globalization of pastoral capitalism in Europe and the developing world including Singapore India and China Mozingo argues that even as it is proliferating pastoral capitalism needs redesign as do many of our metropolitan forms for pressing social cultural political and environmental reasons Future transformations are impossible however unless we understand the past Pastoral Capitalism offers an indispensable chapter in urban history examining not only the design of corporate landscapes but also the economic social and cultural models that determined their form
