Christian Social Innovation Dr. L. Gregory Jones, 2016-05-17 Everybody seems interested in innovation and entrepreneurship these days Start ups are generating new jobs creating wealth and providing solutions to longstanding problems People are also aware that old line social institutions need innovative approaches that provide renewal re establish trust and cultivate sustainability What do faith communities have to do with innovation and entrepreneurship Faith communities have their own need for innovation demonstrated in a growing interest in starting new churches developing fresh expressions for gatherings of community and discussions about how to cultivate a renewed sense of mission But do faith communities have anything unique to contribute to conversations about innovation and entrepreneurship especially in social entrepreneurship At first glance the answer seems to be no

Burgeoning literature on social entrepreneurship barely mentions the church or other faith based institutions and when it does they are often described as part of the broken institutional landscape Recently much of the most innovative and entrepreneurial work in these sectors has been done apart from faith communities whether through secular non governmental organizations e g Teach for America Knowledge is Power Program schools or for profit businesses e g hospitals and hospices Indeed it is now often assumed that faith and faith communities either are irrelevant to social innovation and entrepreneurship or are a significant obstacle We believe too many people in faith communities and faith based organizations themselves turned inward They became preoccupied with managing what already existed rather than focusing on innovative renewal of their organizations and entrepreneurial approaches to starting new ones However Christian social innovation at its best depends on a conception of hope different than the optimism that often characterizes secular endeavors a hope that acknowledges personal and social brokenness Further faith communities at their best have embodied perseverance often bringing people together across generations and diverse sectors to imagine how common effort and faith might overcome obstacles Although some faith communities have lost the at their best focus new conversations and experiments are emerging beyond the goal of starting new congregations But they tend to be and conversations faith and innovation faith and entrepreneurship faith and leadership We don't think this goes deep enough Faith might truly animate social innovation and entrepreneurship In this perspective faith is not held at a distance from the activities of life but is instead its vital force providing the imagination passion and commitment that lead to transformation
