Bundle of Ballads (Classic Reprint) Ruth Manning-Sanders, 2017-05-21 Excerpt from A Bundle of Ballads: People in those far-off days liked stories just as much as people do now, and because they had few books or none, and for the most part could not read, they delighted in the visits of the minstrels who roamed the country from one great lord's house to another, singing their stories and accompanying themselves on the harp. The stories the minstrels sang were of familiar themes: stories of well-known battles of historic raids and captures, and daring rescues of the deeds of bold outlaws, of gallant lovers, and of that mysterious realm of magic that hung like a shimmering mist behind all the busy doings of mankind Of these old ballads no one can say when any particular one was composed or who was the author of it One minstrel hearing the song from another would take a fancy to it and sing it again inventing his own lines when his memory failed him adding new verses according to his fancy and perhaps giving the story a slightly different twist to suit his audience About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
