Metaphor, Truth, and Representation¹

Abstract: Do metaphorical sentences express facts or represent states of affairs in the world? Can a metaphorical statement tell us 'what there is'? These questions raise the issue of whether metaphors can be used to make truth-claims; that is, whether metaphors can be regarded as assertions that can be evaluated as true or false. Some theorists on metaphor have argued for a negative answer to the above-mentioned questions. They have claimed, among others, that metaphorical utterances are non-descriptive uses of language (Blackburn 1998); truth is not the constitutive aim of metaphors (Lamarque and Olsen 1994); metaphorical sentences do not have propositional contents (Davidson 1979; Cooper 1986; Rorty 1987, 1989; Lepore and Stone 2010, 2015); metaphorical utterances are neither assertions nor expressions of beliefs (Loewenberg 1973, 1975; Davies 1982; Davies 1984; Blackburn, 1984). I discuss a particular view, Metaphorical Expressivism, which exploits the relationship between truth, belief and assertion, and argues for the irrelevancy of truth to metaphors on the premise that metaphorical utterances do not count as assertions and that they do not count as the expression of beliefs. The denial of the truth-evaluability of metaphors on this view, I argue, is a product of an unmotivated tendency to see truth and meaning in terms of the portrayal of facts and a commitment to two untenable principles: literalism and representationalism.

0 Introduction

Some theorists of metaphor argue that metaphorical utterances are not expressions of beliefs and that they do not count as assertions. The cornerstone on which these arguments rest is the intricate connection that the notions of belief and assertion have with the notion of truth. An assertion, when it is sincere, is an expression of a belief; an assertion aims at truth, and truth is, arguably, thought to be the constitutive norm of assertion; and hence, assertion is a bearer of truth. An area of discourse (or an utterance) is truth-apt if the utterances in that discourse count as assertions and as expression of beliefs. In the case of metaphor, one can identify a composite view that I will refer to as Metaphorical Expressivism which

Brownings Ring Metaphor And Truth:

Browning's Ring Metaphor and Truth Paul A. Cundiff, 1972 Browning's Ring Metaphor and Truth Paul A. Cundiff, 1972 Robert Browning's Romantic Irony in The Ring and the Book Patricia Diane Rigg, 1999-06 This study is a reading of Robert Browning as an ironist in the tradition of the German Romanticist Friedrich Schlegel who coined the term Romantic irony Specifically Patricia Diane Rigg considers historicity or historical truth in Browning's The Ring and the Book by distinguishing between the processes of representation and re presentation within the context of Romantic irony The Ring and the Book Robert Browning, 2001-08-27 In June 1860 Browning purchased an old yellow book from a bookstall in Florence The book contained legal briefs pamphlets and letters relating to a case that had been tried in 1698 involving a child bride a disguised priest a triple murder four hangings and the beheading of a nobleman Browning resolved to use it as the source for a poem The result The Ring and the Book is certainly one of the most important long poems of the Victorian era and is arguably Browning's greatest work Basing their edition on the 1888-89 version of the poem Altick and Collins include the last corrections Browning intended before his death In addition to a substantial introduction this Broadview Literary Texts edition also includes selections from Browning's correspondence and contemporary reviews and reactions to the work Epic Herbert F. Tucker, 2012-11-29 Literary history has conventionally viewed Milton as the last real practitioner of the epic in English verse Herbert Tucker's spirited book shows that the British tradition of epic poetry was unbroken from the French Revolution to World War I The Critical Reception of Browning's The Ring and the Book Ezzat Abdulmajeed Khattab, 1977 Metaphor, 1985-01-01 The aim of the present bibliography is to provide the student of metaphor with an up to date and comprehensive albeit not exhaustive overview of recent publications dealing with various aspects of metaphor in a variety of disciplines Where the emphasis is primarily on specific works about metaphor mainly in philosophy linguistics and psychology the list has been supplemented with references to studies where metaphor is explicitly recognized as an instrument of research or analysis e g in literature or in the elaboration of scientific and religious models or where its use is illustrated Virginal Sexuality and Textuality in Victorian Literature Lloyd Davis, 1993-01-01 This book examines the figure of the virgin a symbol central to many aspects of society and sexuality in nineteenth century England and its effects on the Victorian literary imagination Studying the virgin as a social sexual and literary phenomenon the volume contributes to current critical accounts of the relations among the body and language gender and discourse These essays explore the ways in which virginity is not a natural ideal but a complex cultural and literary sign The authors rethink the virginal as a textual counter example to the idealization of natural sexuality Victorian and Modern Poetics Carol T. Christ, 1984 The Major Victorian Poets: Reconsiderations (Routledge Revivals) Isobel Armstrong, 2013-06-17 First published in 1969 this edition collection brings together a series of essays offering a re evaluation of Victorian poetry in the light of early 20th Century criticism The essays in this collection concentrate upon the poets whose reputations suffered from the great redirection of energy in English criticism initiated in this century by Eliot Richards and Leavis. What these poets wrote about the values they expressed, the form of the poems, the language they used, all these were examined and found wanting in some radical way. One of the results of this criticism was the renewal of interest in metaphysical and eighteenth century poetry and corresponding ebb of enthusiasm for Romantic poetry and for Victorian poetry in particular. Most of the essays in this book take as their starting point questions raised by the debate on Victorian poetry both earlier in this century and in the more recent past. There are essays on the poetry of Tennyson, Browning and Arnold on that of Clough who until recently has been neglected and Hopkins because of rather than in spite of the fact that he is usually considered to be a modern poet. The volume is especially valuable in that it will give a clearer understanding of the nature of Victorian poetry concentrating as it does on those areas of a poet's work where critical discussion seems most necessary. The Disappearance of God Joseph Hillis Miller, 2000. A landmark work of literary criticism by one of the foremost interpreters of nineteenth century England. The Disappearance of God confronts the consciousness of an absent though perhaps still existent God in the writings of Thomas De Quincey, Robert Browning, Emily Brontë, Matthew Arnold and Gerard Manley Hopkins. J. Hillis Miller surveys the intellectual and material developments that conspired to cut man off from God among other factors: the city developments within Christianity, subjectivism and the emergence of the modern historical sense and shows how each writer's body of work reflects a sustained response to the experience of God's disappearance and a unique effort to weave a new fabric of connection between God and creation. The Victorian Verse-novel Stefanie Markovits, 2017. The Victorian Verse Novel: Aspiring to Life considers the rise of a hybrid generic form, the verse novel, in the second half of the nineteenth century. Such poems combined epic length with novelistic plots in the attempt to capture not a heroic past but the quotidian present. Victorian verse novels also tended to be rough mixed: their narrative sections interspersed with shorter lyrical verses in varied measures. In flouting the rules of contemporary genre theory which saw poetry as the purview of the eternal and ideal and relegated the everyday to the domain of novelistic prose, verse novels proved well suited to upsetting other hierarchies as well, including those of gender and class. The genre's radical energies often emerge from the competition between lyric and narrative drives, between the desire for transcendence and the quest to find meaning in what happens next. The unusual marriage plots that structure such poems prove crucibles of these rival forces. Generic tensions also yield complex attitudes towards time and space: the book's first half considers the temporality of love while its second looks at generic geography through the engagement of novels in verse with Europe and the form's transatlantic travels. Both well known verse novels, Elizabeth Barrett Browning's Aurora Leigh and Arthur Hugh Clough's Amours de Voyage, Coventry Patmore's The Angel in the House and lesser known examples are read closely alongside a few nearly related works: Tennyson's Idylls of the King, Robert Browning's The Ring and the Book. An Afterword traces the verse novel's substantial influence on the modernist novel. Studies in Philology, 1925. Robert Browning: How to Know Him William Lyon Phelps, 2019-12-19. In
