Writing Popular Fiction , Eating and Identity in Postcolonial Fiction Paul Vlitos,2018-10-11 This book focuses on the fiction of four postcolonial authors V S Naipaul Anita Desai Timothy Mo and Salman Rushdie It argues that meals in their novels act as sites where the relationships between the individual subject and the social identities of race class and gender are enacted Drawing upon a variety of academic fields and disciplines including postcolonial theory historical research food studies and recent attempts to rethink the concept of world literature it dedicates a chapter to each author tracing the literary cultural and historical contexts in which their texts are located and exploring the ways in which food and the act of eating acquire meanings and how those meanings might clash collide and be disputed Not only does this book offer suggestive new readings of the work of its four key authors but it challenges the reader to consider the significance of food in postcolonial fiction more generally

Profanity, Obscenity and the Media Melvin J. Lasky, 2017-12-02 This is the second volume of Melvin J Lasky's The Language of Journalism series praised as a brilliant and original study in communications and contemporary language and as a joy to read When it was first published it broke ground in focusing on the comparative styles and prejudices of mainstream American and British newspapers and in its trenchant analysis of their systematic debasement of language in the face of obligatory platitudes and compulsory euphemisms Lasky documents the growing crisis affecting honest thoughtful and independent journalism in the Western world He extends the scope of his first volume in the trilogy and deepens the interpretation He also adds a personal touch of wit and anecdote as one might expect from an experienced international journalist and historian Lasky's examination of the use of formerly forbidden language is a triumph of sinuous semantics In his incisive analysis we see the tortuous struggle of a once Puritanized literary culture writhing to break free of censorship and self censorship This volume on the phenomenon of profanity adds another dimension to Lasky's thesis on mass culture's trivialization of real social and political phenomena It also underscores our society's embrace of banality in standardizing politically correct jargon and slang Readers of the first volume will find here a new range of references to illuminate the detail of what our newspapers have been publishing

China Fictions / English Language, 2008-01-01 The world is anything but unfamiliar with diaspora Jewish African Armenian Roma Gipsy Filipino a Tamil Irish or Italian even Japanese But few have carried so global a resonance as that of China What then of literary cultural expression the huge body of fiction which has addressed itself to that plurality of lives and geographies and which has come to be known as After China This collection of essays offers bearings on those written in English and in which both memory and story are central spanning the USA to Australia Canada to the UK Hong Kong to Singapore with yet others of more transnational nature This collection
