plea whatever except indisposition from morning and evening devotions and these were always performed at stated times In fact the establishment was conducted with the regularity of clockwork it being the aim of its master not to pass a single hour of the day unprofitably The ordinary prayers gone through Stephen Bloundel offered up along and fervent supplication to the Most High for protection against the devouring pestilence with which the city was then scourged He acknowledged that this terrible visitation had been justly brought upon it by the wickedness of its inhabitants that they deserved their doom dreadful though it was that like the dwellers in Jerusalem before it was given up to ruin and desolation they had mocked the messengers of God and despised His word that in the language of the prophet they had refused to hearken and pulled away the shoulder and stopped their ears that they should not hear yea had made their heart like an adamant stone lest they should hear the law and the words which the Lord of Hosts had sent in his spirit by the former prophets He admitted that great sins require great chastisement and that the sins of London were enormous that it was filled with strifes seditions heresies murders drunkenness revellings and every kind of abomination that the ordinances of God were neglected and all manner of vice openly practised that despite repeated warnings and afflictions less grievous than the present these vicious practices had been persisted in All this he humbly acknowledged But he implored a gracious Providence in consideration of his few faithful servants to spare the others yet a little longer and give them a last chance of repentance and amendment or if this could not be and their utter extirpation was inevitable that the habitations of the devout might be exempted from the general destruction might be places of refuge as Zoar was to Lot He concluded by earnestly exhorting those around him to keep constant watch upon themselves not to murmur at God s dealings and dispensations but so to comport themselves that they might be able to stand in the day of wrath in the day of death and in the day of judgment The exhortation produced a powerful effect upon its hearers and they arose some with serious others with terrified looks
