A History of Contemporary Chinese Literature Zicheng Hong, 2007-10-15 This groundbreaking book by the eminent Peking University professor Hong Zicheng covers the literary scene in China during the 1949-1999 period primarily focusing on fiction poetry drama and prose writing Reprinted sixteen times since its publication in the PRC in 1999 it is now available in English translation at last The first section of the book deals with the 1949-1976 period Often derided and ignored as an arid era for literature by both Chinese and overseas critics Professor Hong describes the literature that was popular and officially acceptable at the time and the cultural policies and political campaigns that shaped the tastes of readers and the literary creativity of writers during the period This part of the book is remarkable for Professor Hong's candidness and open mindedness qualities that would have made this text difficult to publish at an earlier date in China Furthermore the platform that the first part of the text provides renders the second part even more understandable to readers unfamiliar with the post 1976 literary scene and offers new insights to those who are familiar with it demonstrating as it does the close links between the two distinctive eras These links are provided by the resumption of literary traditions that had been more or less abandoned during the preceding ten year period as well as reactions against literature nurtured and guided by the state cultural apparatus The second part of the book consists of a comprehensive description of developments and insightful explanations of those developments in the literary arts and literary criticism since 1976 A unique and much needed accomplishment in contemporary literary studies Also available in paperback

Rural Space in the Middle Ages and Early Modern Age Albrecht Classen, 2012-05-29 Older research on the premodern world limited its focus on the Church the court and more recently on urban space The present volume invites readers to consider the meaning of rural space both in light of ecocritical readings and social historical approaches While previous scholars examined the figure of the peasant in the premodern world the current volume combines a large number of specialized studies that investigate how the natural environment and the appearance of members of the rural population interacted with the world of the court and of the city The experience in rural space was important already for writers and artists in the premodern era as the large variety of scholarly approaches indicates The present volume signals how much the surprisingly close interaction between members of the aristocratic and of the peasant class determined many literary and art historical works In a surprisingly large number of cases we can even discover elements of utopia hidden in rural space We also observe how much the rural world was a significant element already in early medieval mentality Moreover as many authors point out the impact of natural forces on premodern society was tremendous if not catastrophic
