There are many theories on why managers do not as a behavior or should not as a value supplement profit orientation with people centrism and planet sensitivity. In practice, managers do not supplement profit orientation with considerations for people and the planet unless they have the tools and know how to make that possible. This book seeks to address that by focusing on the normative dimension of organizational development. There are two competing norms for developing an organization: first as a profit-oriented business enterprise and second as a people-centric planet-sensitive profit-oriented business or social enterprise. The performance of a business is a concern for all stakeholders. With the growing realization of the importance of indirect stakeholders like the society and the planet, it is increasingly important to raise awareness about the social and environmental responsibilities of businesses and organizations. This book is a must-read for academics, researchers, practitioners, and policymakers who are concerned about the triple bottom line: Planet, People, Profit. Performance of businesses, which is critical for their long-term sustainability, covers topics pertaining to the relationship between business and society, including social entrepreneurship and corporate social responsibility among others, and draws from real-life case studies on social initiatives.
