Outdoor Learning and Play Liv Torunn Grindheim,Hanne Værum Sørensen,Angela Rekers,2021-07-20 This Open

Access book examines children's participation in dialectical reciprocity with place-based institutional practices by presenting empirical research from Australia, Brazil, China, Poland, Norway, and Wales. Underpinned by cultural historical theory, the analysis reveals how outdoors and nature form unique conditions for children's play, formal and informal learning, and cultural formation. The analysis also surfaces how inequalities exist in societies and communities which often limit and constrain families and children's access to and participation in outdoor spaces and nature. The findings highlight how institutional practices are shaped by pedagogical content, teachers' training, institutional regulations, and societal perceptions of nature, children, and suitable sustainable education for young children. Due to crises such as climate change and the recent pandemic, specific focus on the outdoors and nature in cultural formation is timely for the cultural historical theoretical tradition. In doing so, the book provides empirical and theoretical support for policy makers, researchers, educators, and families to enhance, increase, and sustain outdoor and nature education.

Outdoor Learning Environments Helen Little, 2020-07-25 Educators have a key pedagogical role in promoting early years outdoor play in natural environments Active outdoor play involving risk taking has been linked to positive effects on social health and behaviour and encourages physical activity and motor skill development. At the same time it has been recognised that opportunities for children to experience outdoor learning have been reduced in recent decades due to the impacts of technology, urbanisation and social change. This book brings together renowned authors with research and professional experience in a range of disciplines to provide a comprehensive guide to developing positive and engaging outdoor learning environments in the early years. Part 1 looks at pedagogy and outdoor environments and considers the value of risk taking and developing a young child's appreciation of the natural world. Part 2 examines the key principles involved in the design and planning of these spaces such as applying the relevant equipment standards and regulations. Part 3 explores how educators can develop an understanding of children's own perspectives on outdoor spaces including promoting agency and recognising the importance of private playspaces. Part 4 examines different cultural perspectives on outdoor play including Indigenous approaches while Part 5 considers the range of experiences possible beyond purposefully designed spaces from visiting nature reserves to exploring urban environments. A much needed and comprehensive resource for pre-service teachers and educators of young children that encompasses philosophies, theories, pedagogy and practice for purposeful engagement of children in all kinds of outdoor spaces in Australia.

Dr Kumara Ward, Director of Academic Program, Early Childhood Education, Western Sydney University. This seminal work will provide a shared language and framework for educators, policy developers, community builders and researchers in exploring the justifications for engaging children in well considered outdoor learning places and spaces.

Outdoor Learning Research Sue Waite, 2020-06-09

The term outdoor learning covers many forms of practice outside the classroom including Forest School and outdoor play. Outdoor learning has been rapidly growing as a topic of interest for educators and parents over the last ten years and research published in this field is also increasing. Despite the fact that we are inextricably part of the natural world, there is concern that contemporary children have become disconnected from nature and that their opportunities to access natural environments are declining. Given compelling evidence that time spent in natural places has multiple benefits for human health and wellbeing and pro-environmental behaviour, Bourn et al (2016) there is an impetus to find ways to increase children's exposure to and attachment to nature through their education. The chapters in this book were originally peer reviewed articles published in Education 3-13: International Journal of Primary, Elementary and Early Years Education. They are amongst the most popular in the journal, reflecting the demand for more evidence of outcomes and high quality information about how best to implement outdoor learning for children in this age group. The authors report qualitative and quantitative studies and consider implications of the findings for children and their development and for the integration or not of natural environment contexts within school practices. Gathering this body of evidence together in a single volume enables important messages about outdoor learning's various purposes, processes and outcomes to be more readily accessed.
