Chinese Wood Sculptures of the 11th to 13th centuries Petra Rösch, 2007-11-16

Chinese Buddhist wooden sculptures of Water moon Guanyin a Bodhisattva sitting in a leisurely reclining pose on a rocky throne are housed in Western collections and are thus removed from their original contexts. Not only are most of them of unknown origin but also lack a precise date. Tracing their sources is difficult because of the scant information provided by art dealers in previous periods. Thus only preliminary investigations into their stylistic development and technical features have been made so far. Moreover, until recently none of the Chinese temples that provided their original context, i.e. their precise position within those temple compounds and their respective place in the Buddhist pantheon, have been examined at all. In her study, Petra H. Rösch investigates these very aspects, including questions about the religious position and function of the sculptures of this special Bodhisattva. She also looks at the technical construction, the collecting of Chinese Buddhist sculptures in general and those made of wood in particular. She uses a combination of stylistic, iconographical, buddhological as well as technical methodologies in her investigation of the Water moon Guanyin images and sheds light on the Buddhist temples in Shanxi Province, the works of art they once housed and the religious practices of the eleventh to thirteenth centuries connected with them.

Chinese Religious Art Patricia Eichenbaum Karetzky, 2013-12-19

Chinese Religious Art is a broad survey of the origins and development of the various forms of artistic expression of Chinese religions. The study begins with an overview of ancient archaeology in order to identify nascent religious ideologies in various Neolithic Cultures and early Chinese historical eras including the Shang dynasty (1300-1050 BCE) and Zhou Dynasty (1000-221 BCE) up until the era of the First Emperor (221-210 BCE). Part Two treats Confucianism as a religious tradition, examining its scriptures, images, temples, and rituals. Adopted as the state ideology in the Han dynasty, Confucian ideas permeated society for over two thousand years. Filial piety, ethical behavior, and other principles shaped the pictorial arts. Part Three considers the various schools of Daoist belief and their expression in art. The ideas of a utopian society and the pursuit of immortality characterize this religion from its earliest phase. Daoism has an elaborate pantheon and ritualistic art as well as a secular tradition best expressed in monochrome ink painting. Part Four covers the development of Buddhist art beginning with its entry into China in the second century. Its monuments comprised largely of cave temples carved high in the mountains along the frontiers of China, and large metropolitan temples provide evidence of its evolution, including the adoption of savior cults of the Buddha of the Western Paradise, the Buddha of the Future, the rise of Chan Zen, and esoteric Buddhism. In their development, these various religious traditions interacted, sharing art, architecture, iconography, and rituals. By the twelfth century, a stage of syncretism merged all three traditions into a popular religion. All the religions are reviving after their extirpation during the Cultural Revolution. Using historical records and artistic evidence, much of which has not been published, this study examines
