The faking and forgery of works of art and antiquities is probably now more extensive than ever before The frauds are aided by new technologies from ink jet printers to epoxy resins and driven by the astronomic prices realised on the global market This book aims to provide a comprehensive survey of the subject over a wide range of materials emphasising how the fakes and forgeries are produced and how they may be detected by technical and scientific examination The subject is exemplified by numerous case studies some turning out not to be as conclusive as is sometimes believed The book is aimed at those likely to have a serious interest in these investigations be they curator collector conservator or scientist Paul Craddock has recently retired from the Department of Conservation Documentation and Science at the British Museum where he was a materials scientist The Archaeology of Portable Art Michelle Langley, Mirani Litster, Duncan Wright, Sally K May, 2018-04-17

The development of complex cultural behaviour in our own species is perhaps the most significant research issue in modern archaeology Until recently it was believed that our capacity for language and art only developed after some of our ancestors reached Europe around 40 000 years ago Archaeological discoveries in Africa now show that modern humans were practicing symbolic behaviours prior to their dispersal from that continent and more recent discoveries in Indonesia and Australia are once again challenging ideas about human cultural development Despite these significant discoveries and exciting potentials there is a curious absence of published information about Asia Pacific region and consequently global narratives of our most celebrated cognitive accomplishment art has consistently underrepresented the contribution of Southeast Asia Australia and the Pacific Islands This volume provides the first outline of what this region has to offer to the world of art in archaeology Readers undertaking tertiary archaeology courses interested in the art of the Asia Pacific region or human behavioural evolution along with anyone who is fascinated by the development of our modern ability to decorate ourselves and our world should find this book a good addition to their library Department of the Interior and related agencies appropriations for
