A Big Elephant Has Been Killed:

A Big Elephant Has Been Killed Yaw O. Agyeman, 2003-03-16 A Big Elephant Has Been Killed is a deeply moving and gripping narrative that interweaves stories of ordinary friendships and love's lost promises with a discussion of society and politics in contemporary Ghana. Although Ghana provides the setting, the novel foregrounds a range of issues relevant to Africa and the black Diaspora as a whole. Badly disillusioned from their years of youthful idealism, a group of friends clings with fleeting solace to their vision for their country through their discussions on poverty, pan-Africanism, underdevelopment, religious identity, social revolution, and Africa's relationship with the West. But the challenges of their daily existence compel them to question the ethics and relevance of their idealism and eventually lead to the desperate decision to steal from the Big Elephant in the penultimate gamble to empower themselves as agents of social transformation. From the Foothills of the Himalayas Nancy W. Axinn, 2008 Back before cell phones, computers, e-mail, and even bridges in the Chitwan Valley in Nepal, Nancy Axinn and her husband worked with agricultural education programs. From the Foothills of the Himalayas is written upon reflection of the notes and letters Axinn penned from 1976 to 1978 while living in rural Nepal. Axinn's small notebook was never out of reach as she traveled in Nepal. Setting off on nearby roads, Axinn climbed steep mountain trails, often wading through rivers to reach the remote schools where she coached prospective teachers of agriculture. Contact with the outside world was by letter, so after each one was written, it went by road or local plane to Axinn's office at Tribhuvan University in Kathmandu. It was then sent by air mail to her daughter in the United States. From the Foothills of the Himalayas provides a firsthand account of the spectacular countryside of rural Nepal, Axinn's agricultural work in the area, and her challenges in cultural adaptation.

Don't Kill Me Ramani Ranjan Khuntia, 2021-03-17 Don't Kill Me contains adventures of life-risking confrontations with animals. Stories of how the young generation during their school and college period take revenge on people for a very small incident and how that small incident escalates to a big bloody episode with many losing their lives. In some instances, young people tried dangerous and life-risking activities to prove their potential. There are untold stories of birds and how they bond with human beings; how one lovely couple is being separated by society in the name of caste; how people are so cruel to animals and how they are slowly, yet prominently, killing them. An account of how ancient people lived in miserable conditions, the experience of life in bullock carts and wooden boats. Stories that narrate how the bonds between people and animals are just like with our families, the tale of why crocodiles do not attack wooden boats, how houses were built and completely ruined after fires, and how people came together to help one another during calamities. Writers and Social Thought in Africa Wale Adebaniwi, 2017-10-02 Social theory and social theorizing about Africa has largely ignored African literature. However, because writers are some of the continent's finest social thinkers, they have produced and continue to produce works which constitute potential sources for the analysis of social thought and for constructing social theory in and beyond the continent This comprehensive collection examines the relationship between African literature and African social thought It explores the evolution and aesthetics of social thought in African fiction and African writers conceptions of power and authority legitimacy history and modernity gender and sexuality culture epistemology globalization and change and continuity in Africa This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Contemporary African Studies The Michigan Alumnus ,2003 In v 1 8 the final number consists of the Commencement annual South African Journal of Science ,1922
