

Plug-in hybrids didn't grow 2013

Conventional hybrids didn't grow 2013

The automakers' sales of conventional hybrids fell 10 percent last year, according to the U.S. government's data. The reason for the decline is unclear, but it may be related to the fact that conventional hybrids are still a niche market. The U.S. government's data shows that conventional hybrids accounted for only 1.5 percent of total vehicle sales in 2013. This is a significant decrease from 2012, when they accounted for 2.5 percent of total vehicle sales.
