Cyclones in Southern Africa Godwell Nhamo, David Chikodzi, 2021-09-28 Tropical cyclones in Southern Africa also known as hurricanes or typhoons in other regions of the world is a hot subject for academic research This focus has been magnified by the need to consider tropical cyclones in the context of other global development agendas that includes the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its inseparable 17 Sustainable Development Goals SDGs the Paris Agreement the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction and Habitat III s New Urban Agenda The ambitious SDGs challenge global and community leaders to make sure development addresses the nexus among poverty inequality and employment creation as well as care for the earth and its natural resources and biodiversity The SDGs further present an agenda to eradicate hunger bring quality education and sustain water and sanitation The infrastructure development human settlements sustainable consumption and production climate change biodiversity and the ocean blue economy agendas are also pitched Lastly the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development encourages partnerships on delivering various programmes and projects at all spatial levels However as tropical cyclones continue to make multiple landfalls and ravage Southern Africa and other parts of the world the achievement of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development is threatened To this end this book addresses this gap by documenting the implications of tropical cyclones drawing examples and case studies from recent tropical cyclones such as cyclone Idai and cyclone Kenneth that resulted in catastrophic impacts in 2019 The book comes as part of a series with three volumes The other volumes include Cyclones in Southern Africa Vol 1 Interfacing the Catastrophic Impact of Cyclone Idai with SDGs in Zimbabwe and Cyclones in Southern Africa Vol 2 Foundational and Fundamental Topics Given the foregoing the book is suitable as a read for several professionals and disciplines such as tourism and hospitality studies economics sustainable development development studies environmental sciences arts geography life sciences politics planning and public health Malawi: Blantyre Dalitso Mpoola, United Nations Human Settlements Programme. Regional and Technical Cooperation Division, 2011 Urban Food Systems Governance and Poverty in African Cities Jane Battersby, Vanessa Watson, 2018-08-22 As Africa urbanises and the focus of poverty shifts to urban centres there is an imperative to address poverty in African cities This is particularly the case in smaller cities which are often the most rapidly urbanising but the least able to cope with this growth This book argues that an examination of the food system and food security provides a valuable lens to interrogate urban poverty Chapters examine the linkages between poverty urban food systems and local governance with a focus on case studies from three smaller or secondary cities in Africa Kisumu Kenya Kitwe Zambia and Epworth Zimbabwe The book makes a wider contribution to debates on urban studies and urban governance in Africa through analysis of the causes and consequences of the paucity of urban scale data for decision makers and by presenting potential methodological innovations to address this paucity As the global development agenda is increasingly focusing on urban issues most notably the urban goal of the new Sustainable Development Goals and the New Urban Agenda the work is timely The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.tandfebooks.com/doi/view/10.4324/9781315191195> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Rapid Urbanisation, Urban Food Deserts and Food Security in Africa Jonathan Crush, Jane Battersby, 2016-09-23 This book investigates food security and the implications of hyper urbanisation and rapid growth of urban populations in Africa By means of a series of case studies involving African cities of various sizes it argues that while the concept of food security holds value it needs to be reconfigured to fit the everyday realities and distinctive trajectory of urbanisation in the region The book goes on to discuss the urban context where food insecurity is more a problem of access and changing consumption patterns than of insufficient food production In closing it approaches food insecurity in Africa as an increasingly urban problem that requires different responses from those applied to rural populations

Urban transformations and public health in the emergent city Michael Keith, Andreza Aruska de Souza Santos, 2020-08-18 This electronic version has been made available under a Creative Commons BY-NC-ND open access license Urban transformations and public health in the emergent city examines how urban health and wellbeing are shaped by migration mobility racism sanitation and gender Adopting a global focus that spans Africa Asia Europe and Latin America the essays in this volume bring together a wide selection of voices that explore the interface between social medical and natural sciences This interdisciplinary approach moving beyond traditional approaches to urban research offers a unique perspective on today's cities and the challenges they face Edited by Michael Keith and Andreza Aruska de Souza Santos this volume also features contributions from leading thinkers on cities in Brazil China South Africa and the United Kingdom This geographic diversity is matched by the breadth of their different fields from mental health and gendered violence to sanitation and food systems Together they present a complex yet connected vision of a new biopolitics in today's metropolis one that requires an innovative approach to urban scholarship regardless of geography or discipline This volume featuring chapters from a number of renowned authors including former Deputy Mayor of Rio de Janeiro Luiz Eduardo Soares is an important resource for anyone seeking to better understand the dynamics of urban change With its focus on the everyday realities of urban living from health services to public transportation it contains valuable lessons for academics policy makers and practitioners alike

Urban Water Ecosystems in Africa and Asia Shamik Chakraborty, Amit Chatterjee, Pankaj Kumar, 2024-12-13 This book examines urban water ecosystem management and restoration through selected case studies in Asia and Africa Employing a socioecological approach this volume presents insights on the interlinkages between water humans and environmental conservation in an urban context Topics include human health risks population displacement and migration water pollution water scarcity flood management water infrastructure afforestation and the effects of climate change Case studies are drawn from a variety of countries in Africa and Asia including China Japan India Vietnam Bangladesh Kenya Malawi and Tunisia which demonstrate a wide range of different challenges and opportunities Overall this

9789211325980      The State of African Cities, 2014 United Nations Publications, 2015-09-10 The African continent is currently in the midst of simultaneously unfolding and highly significant demographic economic technological environmental urban and socio political transitions Africa s economic performance is promising with booming cities supporting growing middle classes and creating sizable consumer markets Despite significant overall growth the continent continues to suffer under very rapid urban growth accompanied by massive urban poverty and many other social problems These seem to indicate that the development trajectories followed by African nations since post independence may not be able to deliver on the aspirations of broad based human development and prosperity for all This report therefore argues for a bold re imagining of prevailing models in order to steer the ongoing transitions towards greater sustainability based on a thorough review of all available options That is especially the case since the already daunting urban challenges in Africa are now being exacerbated by the new vulnerabilities and threats associated with climate and environmental change      Mapping the vulnerability of mountain peoples to food insecurity Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-10-12 For millions of people living in mountainous areas hunger and the threat of hunger are nothing new Harsh climates and the difficult often inaccessible terrain combined with political and social marginality make mountain peoples vulnerable to food shortages One in three mountain people in developing countries is facing hunger and malnutrition This study presents an updated geographic and demographic picture of the world s mountain areas and assesses the vulnerability to food insecurity of mountain dwellers in developing countries based on a specially designed model The final section presents an alternative and complementary approach to assessing hunger by analyzing household surveys The results show that the living conditions of mountain dwellers have continued to deteriorate in the last decade Global progress and living standard improvements do not appear to have made their way up the mountains and many mountain communities lag way behind the full eradication of poverty and hunger This publication gives voice to the plight of mountain people and sends a message to policy makers on the importance of including mountain development in their agendas as well as specific measures and investments that could break the cycle of poverty and hunger of mountain communities and slow outmigration from mountain areas      Exploring Food and Urbanism Susan Parham, Matthew Hardy, 2021-09-09 Exploring Food and Urbanism looks at the ways food and cities interconnect in a diversity of places across the globe The book s focus moves from transformations in feeding the city and its hinterland in Istanbul Turkey through neighbourhoods struggling with food access in Blantyre Malawi to the challenges in making convivial public food spaces in Cairo It explores everyday buying practices in Islamabad food markets that reflect wider changes in food cultures in Pakistan The possibilities for growing food in suburban Cape Town in South Africa are tested while possibilities for sharing meals using online methods to bring cooks and eaters together are considered across the Netherlands This edited volume makes clear that globally food is critical to sustainable urbanism everywhere across cities from kitchens to gardens food markets food shops streets squares neighbourhoods cities suburbs and hinterlands It shows how food cultures practices and economics are closely intertwined with how places are planned and designed even if this is not always fully recognised The editors of the book conclude that food can and should contribute to responding to the challenges presented by the worsening climate emergency through a focus on sustainable urbanism The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Urbanism

Food and Nutrition Security in Southern African Cities Bruce Frayne,Jonathan Crush,Cameron McCordic,2017-12-22 Urban population growth is extremely rapid across Africa and this book places urban food and nutrition security firmly on the development and policy agenda. It shows that current efforts to address food poverty in Africa that focus entirely on small scale farmers to the exclusion of broader socio economic and infrastructural approaches are misplaced and will remain largely ineffective in ameliorating food and nutrition insecurity for the majority of Africans. Using original data from the African Food Security Urban Network's AFSUN extensive database it is demonstrated that the primary food security challenge for urban households is access to food. Already linked into global food systems and value chains Africa's supply of food is not necessarily in jeopardy. Rather the widespread poverty and informal urban fabric that characterizes Africa's emerging cities impinge directly on households capacity to access food that is readily available. Through the analysis of empirical data collected from 6 500 households in eleven cities in nine countries in Southern Africa the authors identify the complexity of factors and dynamics that create the circumstances of widespread food and nutrition insecurity under which urban citizens live. They also provide useful policy approaches to address these conditions that currently thwart the latent development potential of Africa's expanding urban population.
