Richard J. Dean, 2013-06-29 My interest in the behaviour and movements of birds of arid and semi arid ecosystems began when my wife Sue Milton and I were Roy Siegfried Director at that time of the Percy approached by Prof FitzPatrick Institute of African Ornithology to set up a project to investigate granivory in the South African Karoo Sue and I spent some time finding a suitable study site setting up accommodations and an automatic weather station at Tierberg in the southern Karoo near the village of Prince Albert and planning projects Among our first projects was a transect where we noted plant phenology measured seed densities on the soil surface counted birds observed ant activity measured soil surface temperatures and collected whatever climate data we could at 40 sites along a 200 km oval route Along the way we became interested in the marked presence and absence of birds at certain sites abundant birds one day and very few birds at the same site a month later Subsequent counts along fixed transects through shrublands confirmed that a number of bird species were highly nomadic over short and long distances locally and regionally leading to speculation on how widespread these movements were in the arid ecosystems of the world Travels in Arabia Deserta, 1888 Western exploration of the Arabian Desert began in the mid eighteenth century but it was not until the nineteenth century that the British officers of the Indian colonial government undertook surveys of the areas remote from the major pilgrimage routes Charles Doughty 1843 1926 spent two years among various nomad tribes and wrote in 1888 what would be the first comprehensive Western work on the geography of Arabia in an attempt as he says in the preface to set forth faithfully some parcel of the soil of Arabia smelling of s mn and camels His classic and justly famous account is a fantastic piece of travel writing that shows full understanding of the area the people and all aspects of nomadic life in the desert

Nomad's Land

Andrea E. Duffy, 2019-12-01 During the nineteenth century the development and codification of forest science in France were closely linked to Provence s time honored tradition of mobile pastoralism which formed a major part of the economy At the beginning of the century pastoralism also featured prominently in the economies and social traditions of North Africa and southwestern Anatolia until French forest agents implemented ideas and practices for forest management in these areas aimed largely at regulating and marginalizing Mediterranean mobile pastoral traditions These practices changed not only landscapes but also the social order of these three Mediterranean societies and the nature of French colonial administration

In Nomad's Land Andrea E Duffy investigates the relationship between Mediterranean mobile pastoralism and nineteenth century French forestry through case studies in Provence French colonial Algeria and Ottoman Anatolia By restricting the use of shared spaces foresters helped bring the populations of Provence and Algeria under the control of the state and French scientific forestry became a medium for state initiatives to sedentarize mobile pastoral groups in Anatolia Locals responded through petitions arson violence compromise and adaptation Duffy shows that French efforts to promote scientific forestry both internally and abroad were intimately tied to empire building and paralleled the solidification of Western narratives condemning the pastoral tradition leading to sometimes tragic outcomes for both the environment and pastoralists

On Representation Grant Hamilton, 2011-12 In this important new study Hamilton establishes and develops innovative links between the sites of postcolonial literary theory the fiction of the South African Australian academic and Nobel Prize winning writer J M Coetzee and the work of the French poststructuralist philosopher Gilles Deleuze Centering on the key postcolonial problematic of representation Hamilton argues that if one approaches the colonial subject through Gilles Deleuze's rewriting of subjectivity then a transcendent configuration of the colonial subject is revealed Importantly it is this rendition of the colonial subject that accounts best for the way in which the colonial subject is able to propose and offer instances of resistance to colonial structures of subjectification In elucidating this claim the study turns to the fiction of Coetzee Offering unique Deleuzian readings of three of Coetzee's most theoretically beguiling novels Dusklands Waiting for the Barbarians and Foe On Representation will prove to be essential reading to those interested in Coetzee studies the literary terrain of Deleuze's philosophy and those engaging with contemporary debates in postcolonial literature and theory
