Designing for Play Ms Barbara E Hendricks, 2013-06-28 10 years ago Barbara Hendricks brought together thinking from child development and child psychology perspectives on play with practical issues confronted by designers and policy makers The result was a beautifully crafted well illustrated guide challenging established notions of play provision This second edition brings the text up to date from 2001 to 2010 with added discussion about new ideas for play area designs and what has not worked in the past decade Design for Fun Marta Rojals del Alamo, 2004 Presents playground design ideas by featuring playgrounds from around the world which provide both entertaining environments and aesthetically pleasing public spaces while also assuring that safety requirements are met Designing for Play Barbara Hendrickson, 2018-12-13 This title was first published in 2001 Architects landscape designers builders gardeners and teachers have all at some time been called upon to design a play area Unfortunately this diversity has not resulted in a similar diversity of design solutions for this very problematic task Despite a proliferation of how to books on this subject playgrounds have remained virtually the same throughout the world since their creation over a century ago This is not a how to design book Instead based on thirty years experience as a specialist play area designer Barbara Hendricks details a radically new approach applying cutting edge thinking from child development and child psychology to find innovative design solutions challenging the established notions of play provision Covering key sociological public policy environmental and design issues this book provides designers with an exploration of and guide to designing from a child's eye view of the world Beautifully crafted and copiously illustrated with numerous examples of recently designed playgrounds this book is not only stimulating and informative but fun to read and seriously playful in itself SAFE and Fun Playgrounds Heather Olsen, Susan Hudson, Donna Thompson, 2015-11-10 A guide to creating safe yet fun and challenging playgrounds exlibris Giovanni Corbellini, 2022-05-18 Architects write a lot especially now when conceptual aspects have become central in the advanced reflections and narrative forms increasingly intersect the quest of design practices for an ultimate legitimization In the growing mass of the publishing offer these keywords try to highlight recurrent issues tracking synthetic paths of orientation between different critical positions with particular attention to what happens in the neighbouring fields of the arts and sciences Children and their Urban Environment Claire Freeman, Paul Tranter, 2012-10-02 In our fast changing urban world the impacts of social and environmental change on children are often overlooked Children and their Urban Environment examines these impacts in detail looking at the key activities spaces and experiences children have and how these can be managed to ensure that children benefit from change The authors highlight the importance of planners architects and housing professionals in creating positive environments for children and involving them in the planning process They argue that children's lives are becoming simultaneously both richer and more deprived and that despite apparently increasing wealth disparities between children are increasing further Each chapter includes international examples of good practice and policy innovations for redressing the balance in favour of child supportive environments The book seeks to embrace childhood as a time of freedom social engagement and environmental adventure and to encourage creation of environments that better meet the needs of children The authors argue that in doing so we will build more sustainable neighbourhoods cities and societies for the future

Children's Spaces Mark Dudek,2012-05-04 This collection of essays is concerned with the experiences children have within the supervised worlds they inhabit as well as with architecture and landscape architecture International examples of innovative childcare practice are illustrated together with the design processes which informed their development The emphasis here is on new and experimental childcare projects which set out to reassert the rights of children to participate in a complex multi faceted world which is no longer available to them unless under adult supervision Research supports in depth recommendations regarding the ideal children s environment across a range of contexts and dimensions Until recent times the needs of children within the urban environment were largely ignored There is little tradition and no broadly agreed contemporary architectural or landscape theory as to how children should be provided for beyond a limited functional agenda There is a sense that architecture for childhood is not taken seriously it is either whimsical and ephemeral or largely designed for adults an adjunct to the more important business of adult needs and aspirations Yet children access much of their education and development through play and social interaction with their childhood counterparts The spaces in and around childrens daycare centres schools supervised parks and other dedicated childrens environments are the subject of this collection As more and more purpose designed buildings and gardens for children are opened the need to listen to children and their carers is becoming more aparant Mark Dudek gathers together a number of internationally recognized experts in the field of childcare environments to write about different aspects of the landscape They have been chosen in particular because of their background in enquiring research orientated work both theoretical and practical They listen to and watch children Contributors have considered the childs environment as one which is secure and controlled yet offers additional environmental dimensions which extend developmental possibilities Children often spend a great deal of time in daycare facilties and schools as parents are absorbed in their own work and leisure activities This places an emphasis on architects and planners to consider the needs of children in great detail As such the childrens environment must be conceived of as a rich complex place a world within a world We use the word LANDSCAPE in recognition that children do not differentiate between the inside and the outside private and public every part of their perception is open to stimulation by a stimulating environment
