Architecture Versus Housing:

Architecture Versus Housing Martin Pawley, 1971 By-Right, By-Design Liz Falletta, 2019-06-26 Housing is an essential but complex product so complex that professionals involved in its production namely architects real estate developers and urban planners have difficulty agreeing on good housing outcomes Less than optimal solutions that have resulted from a too narrow focus on one discipline over others are familiar high design that is costly to build that makes little contribution to the public realm highly profitable but seemingly identical cookie cutter dwellings with no sense of place and well planned neighborhoods full of generically designed unmarketable product types Differing roles languages and criteria for success shape these perspectives which in turn influence attitudes about housing regulation Real estate developers for example prefer projects that can be built as of right or by right meaning that they can be approved quickly because they meet all current planning zoning and building code requirements Design focused projects heretofore by design by contrast often require time to challenge existing regulatory codes pursuing discretionary modifications meant to maximize design innovation and development potential Meanwhile urban planners work to establish and mediate the threshold between by right and by design processes by setting housing standards and determining appropriate housing policy But just what is the right line between by right and by design By Right By Design provides a historical perspective conceptual frameworks and practical strategies that cross and connect the diverse professions involved in housing production The heart of the book is a set of six cross disciplinary comparative case studies each examining a significant Los Angeles housing design precedent approved by variance and its associated development type approved as of right Each comparison tells a different story about the often hidden relationships among the three primary disciplines shaping the built environment some of which uphold and others of which transgress conventional disciplinary stereotypes Architecture and the Housing Question Can Bilsel, Juliana Maxim, 2022-06-29 Architecture and the Housing Question examines how the design and provision of housing around the world have become central both to competing political projects and to the architecture profession How have architects acting as housing experts helped alleviate or enforce class race and gender inequality What are the disciplinary implications of taking on shelter for the multitude as an architectural assignment and responsibility The book features essays in the historiography of architecture and the housing question and a collection of historical case studies from Belgium China France Ghana the Netherlands Kenya the Soviet Union Turkey and the United States The thematic organization of the collection interrogating housing expertise the state apparatus segregation and colonialism highlights the methodological questions that underpin its international outlook The book will appeal to students and scholars in architecture architectural history theory and urban studies Architecture Versus Housing in Mining Towns Michael Graetz, 1982 The Architecture of Affordable Housing Sam Davis, 1995 This text is about the design of dignified affordable housing for those not served by the private sector and how that housing fits comfortably into our communities It is a non technical analysis for everyone interested in the creation of affordable housing Housing and Planning References, 1971 Housing, Architecture and the Edge Condition Ellen Rowley, 2018-11-02 This book presents an architectural overview of Dublin's mass housing building boom from the 1930s to the 1970s. During this period Dublin Corporation built tens of thousands of two storey houses developing whole communities from virgin sites and green fields at the city's edge while tentatively building four storey flat blocks in the city centre. Author Ellen Rowley examines how and why this endeavour occurred. Asking questions around architectural and urban obsolescence she draws on national political and social histories as well as looking at international architectural histories and the influence of post war reconstruction programmes in Britain or the symbolisation of the modern dwelling within the formation of the modern nation. Critically the book tackles this housing history as an architectural and design narrative. It explores the role of the architectural community in this frenzied provision of housing for the populace. Richly illustrated with architectural drawings and photographs from contemporary journals and the private archives of Dublin based architectural practices this book will appeal to academics and researchers interested in the conditions surrounding Dublin's housing history The House, a Pocket Manual of Rural Architecture, Or, How to Build Country Houses and Out-buildings Daniel Harrison Jacques, 1859 Housing as Intervention Karen Kubey, 2018-07-30 Across the world the housing crisis is escalating. Mass migration to cities has led to rapid urbanisation on an unprecedented scale while the withdrawal of public funding from social housing provision in Western countries and widening income inequality have further compounded the situation. In prosperous US and European cities middle and low income residents are being pushed out of housing markets increasingly dominated by luxury investors. The average London tenant for example now pays an unaffordable 49 per cent of his or her pre tax income in rent. Parts of the developing world and areas of forced migration are experiencing insufficient affordable housing stock coupled with rapidly shifting ways of life. In response to this context forward thinking architects are taking the lead with a collaborative approach. By partnering with allied fields working with residents developing new forms of housing and leveraging new funding systems and policies they are providing strategic leadership for what many consider to be our cities most pressing crisis. Amidst growing economic and health disparities this issue of AD asks how housing projects and the design processes behind them might be interventions towards greater social equity and how collaborative work in housing might reposition the architectural profession at large.
