Science: an Introductory Reader Rudolf Steiner, 2013-05-01 From pre science to science The origin of mathematics The roots of physics and chemistry and the urge to experiment Are there limits to what science can know Understanding organisms Goethe's method The quest for archetypal phenomena Light darkness and colour The rediscovery of the elements What is warmth The scale of nature The working of the ethers in the physical Sub nature What are atoms Natural science and spiritual science

Art Rudolf Steiner, 2003 Rudolf Steiner's vision of art as with all forms of human expression is that it should reflect our human experience of the Divine This was not intended to suggest vague mystical fantasy As one of the few true initiates of the twentieth century he was able to experience the realms from which humanity and all nature descend into temporal and spatial existence He was able to speak with confidence of the qualitative and dynamic worlds of soul and spirit from which all the phenomena we experience spring including our individual existence The means by which the living nature of these realms can be expressed is not through rationally expressed concepts which point only to the material quantitative perceptions from which they are derived but through the various forms and languages of art Through art human beings express the qualitative experiences of life But Steiner goes even further In the more recent history of art especially that of the West artistic expression has become less a product of spiritual inspiration and more the expression of personal experience which is identified with materialistic existence Naturalistic and realistic representations of the physical world are devoid of spiritual expression As humanity has descended into a materialized spiritually void experience of life art has followed that trend Today it is little more than expressions of subjective sensory views of the world Modern nonrepresentational art on the other hand is an instinctive backlash against that trend but does not get beyond personal expression Contemporary art remains sadly isolated from the source of its own being the world of soul and spirit Steiner however attempts to unite personal human experience with the spiritual source of art so that artists are spiritually conscious of the realm from which inspired expression descends into human existence Such artists are neither isolated from the spirit nor do they act as automatic mediumistic channels but as a conscious and cooperative instruments of spirit Human consciousness must come to truly sense some experience of spirit before real progress in art can occur and this is what Steiner tries to help artists achieve in the lectures and writings collected in this volume Some of the works in this collection have been unavailable in English for some time Topics include the being of the arts Goethe as the founder of a new science of aesthetics technology and art new millenniums the purpose of modern art and architecture living walls glass windows wall colors moving the circle the seven planetary symbols in the first Goetheanum The Group statue and color faces and physiognomy

The Architecture and Geography of Sound Studios Even Smith Wergeland, 2024-06-21 This is a book about sound studios focusing on their architectural and geographical aspects It explores how music is materialized under specific spatial and technological conditions and the myths associated with this process Through ten in depth studies it examines the design evolution and current function of sound studios amidst economic and technological shifts in the music industry Traditional studios are in flux between the past and future The industry while steeped in romanticism and nostalgia also embraces forward driven pragmatism and an extensive reuse culture encompassing heritage audio building materials and existing buildings A surprisingly diverse architectural heritage the most significant feature is the host building the framework around the studio capsule Many traditional studios adapt to digitalization with hybrid solutions reflecting a shift toward smaller more versatile spaces In a time when recordings in theory can happen anywhere destination studios must excel to attract clients balancing historical legacies with diversification Although they may be easy to deconstruct many of the myths endure sustaining ideas of landmark recordings unique locations and distinct remnants of sonic heritage Courtesy of their capacity to keep the past alive in the present traditional sound studios are best described as museums that work This book aims to reach scholars and students with an interest in history theory and preservation as well as practicing architects and architectural students who wish to find out more about the relationship between sound and space acoustic design and retrofitting of historical buildings into specialized functions It also aims to reach practicing musicians producers music students and music scholars

The Architecture of James

Stirling and His Partners James Gowan and Michael Wilford Geoffrey H. Baker, 2016-12-05 Sir James Stirling was arguably the greatest British architect of the twentieth century This book provides the most comprehensive critical survey of Stirling's work to date charting the development of his ideas from his formative years through his partnership with James Gowan on to his period in practice as sole partner and finally his partnership with Michael Wilford Using archival material extensive interviews with his partners and others who worked for him together with analytical examination of key buildings this detailed critical examination explains his philosophy working method and design strategy In doing so it sheds new light on the atelier structure of his office and who did what on his major buildings Geoffrey Baker is the first to analyse in depth the articulation systems used in major projects undertaken by Stirling He confirms that the Staatsgalerie complex at Stuttgart does not demonstrate Stirling's interest in post modernism but rather an enhanced sensitivity towards context informed by his growing allegiance to the classical canon Baker explains how this important development in his work powerfully influenced by Karl Friedrich Schinkel is consummated in perhaps the finest of Stirling's uncompleted works the extension to London's National Gallery In a discussion of his mature works Baker explains how Stirling's work can be understood in terms of several interconnected ideas These include surrealism historicism myth and metaphor inconsistency and ambiguity bilateral symmetry the garden rusticity and arcadia and the archetype seen as the repository of the collective architectural memory As well as discussing his interests and those who influenced Stirling the book compares his oeuvre with that of the pioneers of modern architecture Mies van der Rohe Frank Lloyd Wright Alvar Aalto and Le Corbusier This book charts a remarkable career and offers invaluable insights not only into the masterly timeless architecture but also into the man himself charismatic irreverent courageous serious sometimes rude often stubborn belligerent yet gentle He was endlessly inventive and deeply dedicated to his art producing buildings that reflect all of the above buildings that are magnificent and ultimately humane
