Integrated Natural Language Dialogue Robert E. Frederking, 2012-12-06 Natural language dialogue is a continuous unified phenomenon Speakers use their conversational context to simplify individual utterances through a number of linguistic devices including ellipsis and definite references Yet most computational systems for using natural language treat individual utterances as separate entities and have distinctly separate processes for handling ellipsis definite references and other dialogue phenomena This book a slightly revised version of the Ph D dissertation that I completed in December 1986 describes a different approach It presents a computational system Psli3 that uses the uniform framework of a production system architecture to carry out natural language understanding and generation in a well integrated way This is demonstrated primarily through intersentential ellipsis resolution in addition to examples of definite reference resolution and interactive error correction The system s conversational context arises naturally as the result of the persistence of the internal representations of previous utterances in working memory Natural language input is interpreted within this framework using a modification of the syntactic technique of chart parsing extended to include semantics and adapted to the production system architecture This technique called semantic chart parsing provides a graceful way of handling ambiguity within this architecture and allows separate knowledge sources to interact smoothly across different utterances in a highly integrated fashion xvi Integrated Natural Language Dialogue The design of this system demonstrates how flexible and natural user interactions can be carried out using a system with a naturally flexible control structure Saint Thomas's Hospital Reports St. Thomas' Hospital (London, England), 1878 Words and Phrases , 2007 All judicial constructions and definitions of words and phrases by the State and Federal courts from the earliest times alphabetically arranged and indexed

Court of Appeal (2nd Appellate District). Records and Briefs* California (State)., Quotations as Pictures Josef Stern, 2022-02-15 The proposal of a semantics for quotations using explanatory notions drawn from philosophical theories of pictures In Quotations as Pictures Josef Stern develops a semantics for quotations using explanatory notions drawn from philosophical theories of pictures. He offers the first sustained analysis of the practice of quotation proper as opposed to mentioning. Unlike other accounts that treat quotation as mentioning, Quotations as Pictures argues that the two practices have independent histories that they behave differently semantically. That the inverted commas employed in both mentioning and quotation are homonymous, that so-called mixed quotation is nothing but subsentential quotation, and that the major problem of quotation is to explain its dual reference or meaning, its ordinary meaning and its metalinguistic reference to the quoted phrase attributed to the quoted subject, Stern argues that the key to understanding quotation is the idea that quotations are pictures or have a pictorial character. As a phenomenon where linguistic competence meets a nonlinguistic symbolic ability, the pictorial quotation is a combination of features drawn from the two different symbol systems of language and pictures, which explains the exceptional and sometimes idiosyncratic data about quotation. In light of this analysis of verbal quotation, in the last chapters Stern analyzes scare quotation as a nonliteral expressive use of the inverted commas and explores the possibility of quotation in pictures themselves.
