Contributions to the Analysis of the Sensations Ernst Mach, 1897 The Philosophical Review Jacob Gould Schurman, James Edwin Creighton, Frank Thilly, Gustavus Watts Cunningham, 1909 An international journal of general philosophy Contributions to the Analysis of the Sensations Ernst Mach, 1998 Insisting that sensation constitutes the data for all science physical and psychological Mach articulated an early form of scientific positivism that provided K lpe and Titchener with an epistemological framework for their emerging views Conceiving of space and time not as Kantian categories but as the immediate data of experience Mach also helped lay the groundwork for the gestaltists later recognition of the phenomenal status of extension and duration The Analysis of Sensations, and the Relation of the Physical to the Psychical Ernst Mach, 1914 Physicist and philosopher Ernst Mach investigates the physical sensations of sight sound motion and the perceptions of space and time Mach is frank about his book incorporating both scientific and philosophical ideas While acknowledging his investigations were on the border of what science had helped humans comprehend he defends his work by stating that the manifold sensations a person experiences each day are the result of a complex interplay of biology and physics As such philosophical enquiries on the sensory experience are merited for science alone cannot encompass or quantify the various sensations with a view to explaining their precise effects on the human mind and its thought processes An example investigated by Mach is that of time how certain sensory experiences appear to make time pass slower or faster Often vivid experiences a shocking sight produce the sensation of time slowing why this occurs and how it affects the mind is discussed at length Though Mach met with both praise and opposition with the successive editions of this work he is cheerful at having aroused such debate he had appropriated aspects of science to philosophic ends

Empfindungen I am under profound obligations to The Open Court Publishing Company Not a little of the progress of psychology is owing to the strenuous efforts which the promoters of the science have made to find the main explanation of its problems in the principle of association and these investigations have received a fresh impulse from the results of neural anatomy and neural physiology I am of opinion however that the idea advanced in the present work agreeably to which as many physico chemical neural processes are to be assumed as there are distinguishable qualities of sensation is also possessed of heuristic value and that there is reasonable hope that at some future time it too will receive elucidation from the side of physiological chemistry Admittedly this idea which is but a consistent monistic conception of Muller's principle of the specific energies is not in accord with prevailing notions By the example and influence of a great authority it has become the custom to relegate the explanation of different qualities of sensation to unknown domains and to regard all neural processes as absolutely alike qualitatively and only quantitatively different About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

BOOK JACKET Philosophy of Meaning I Geoffroy de Clisson, 2025-04-05

The philosophy of meaning is structured around four main axes: knowledge, aesthetics, ethics, and identity. By engaging with the question of the emergence of consciousness, it examines the logical limits of materialism and reductionism and offers a critique of physicalist monism in favor of a reimagined dualism, one grounded in the discontinuity between matter and meaning, a discontinuity that alone makes possible the emergence of objective discourse. At the heart of this approach lies the idea of an original openness of being to the world, a silent exposure to what is external to it, preceding language, logic, and any form of representation. Three central dimensions of experience can thus be explored on the basis of this primordial structure: aesthetics through music as an immediate access to the articulation between the sensible and the significant; ethics as a fundamental questioning of the relationship to otherness that precedes the normative concerns of morality and identity, conceived as a dynamic dialectic between openness and the gathering of being. These domains are not separate fields but each in its own mode expresses the structure of a radical dualism, the condition for any formal production, any act of thought, and any possibility of understanding the world. Underlying it all is an attempt to reconcile science and humanism through a philosophy of form, freedom, and spirit.
