STANDARD OPERATING PROCEDURE

Most businesses have problems consistently delivering the same quality of product or service to customers. The larger the organization becomes, the more serious the challenge. For this reason, it's advisable to ensure consistency around all parts of the business by implementing a standard operating procedure.

This standard operating procedure checklist will help you write an SOP to ensure employees maintain the best practices. SOPs can help guide the way and method which a task should play out by documenting imperative step-by-step instructions. Take advantage of the checklist below to help write a suitable SOP.

☐ Procedure Title

Give your SOP a clear title at the top of the document. A title will provide sufficient detail about the process that the document will cover. You may use a title page or only include a title header at the top of the page.

☐ Date

Let readers know the date of creation of the document. Including a date will help employees know if the document is recent or outdated. Consider including a field that informs employees whether the SOP was recently revised.

☐ Individual Responsible for the SOP

Give a detailed list of those responsible for the SOP. Assign an individual to be the owner of each SOP created for the company. Taking this step will let employees know who to speak to if there are any questions to ask.

☐ Contact Details of SOP Owner

Always provide the contact information of the individual responsible for the standard operating procedure. It's advisable to consider providing an email address or phone number for reaching the individual during and outside business hours.

☐ Target Job Titles

Let employees know who needs the SOP. Note that several departments may have similar processes with unique standard operating procedures. For this reason, it's imperative to list the job titles that should follow the specific SOP created.
