

MANDATORY CORPORATE ACCOUNTING DISCLOSURE PRACTICES: AN INVESTORS VIEW

Dr. C. Vethirajan*
Dr. K. Banupriya

ABSTRACT

Corporate accounting disclosure is of great significance to accomplish financial accounting objectives as well as to contribute to the efficient allocation of resources through healthy economic decisions. The disclosure of accounting practices have developed in accordance with the changing economic, political, technological and social environments to fulfill the objectives of financial reporting. As business enterprises have increased all over the world in number and size, the supply of the capital and related risk taking have also increased correspondingly, in turn creating considerable public interest in participating in business activity by making investments. To evaluate the corporate financial reporting practices, the data were collected from investors from the samples regarding mandatory disclosure of corporate accounting, usefulness of various accounting formats, usefulness of corporate financial reporting and level of satisfaction in various aspects of corporate finance reporting. The total sample respondents are 435 and Simple random sampling technique was adopted. The data are subjected to frequency / percentage analysis, descriptive analysis such as mean, standard deviation along with independent t-test and one-way ANOVA. The investors have grouped the disclosure of mandatory items in corporate annual report into four major components, viz., disclosure of income and expense items, disclosure of balance sheet items, disclosure of cash / fund flow with auditor's report and disclosure of accounting policy with income tax information and the respondent group have perceived the entire component of mandatory disclosure as good but with notable difference in such levels.

KEYWORDS: Corporate Accounting Disclosure, Mandatory Disclosure, Corporate Annual Reports
JEL Classification: M48, M49.

Introduction

Accounting aims to provide financial information about a business enterprise to various interested groups for decision making. It is a process of identifying, measuring and communicating economic information to permit informed judgment and decisions by the users of information.¹ It is a service activity and its function is to provide quantitative information, primarily financial in nature, about economic entities, that is intended to be useful in making economic decisions.² The supply of information by the corporate entities, on their affairs and performance, to the external users is variously termed as 'corporate reporting', 'corporate disclosures', 'external reporting', or 'public reporting'. Ever increasing importance of the corporate sector in the national economy has necessitated a complete and analytical disclosure of accounting information as a whole. The accepted form of financial reporting is the annual report. The essential and important components of the annual reports are the balance sheet, which depicts the financial position of the business at a specific point of time, and the income statement, which depicts the performance of the same organization over a specific period of time. Balance sheet and profit and loss account should fully, fairly and adequately meet the informational needs of the parties involved.
