Practical Guide to Scientific Writing in Chemistry Andrew Terhemen Tyowua, 2023-03-31 Successful completion of postgraduate studies especially PhD and career advancement in academia strongly depend on the ability to publish scientific papers or books and attract research grants. However, many chemical scientists find preparing scientific papers and research grant and book proposals difficult partly because of insufficient training in writing and partly because there are few practical books to enable them to learn the art. This step by step practical guide is intended mainly for postgraduate students and early career researchers in chemical science and the libraries that serve them but will also be useful to other scientists. Key Features: Improves the reader's chances of getting their manuscript published in chemistry journals; Increases the likelihood of winning research grants in chemistry; Takes a lead by the hand approach; Contains chapters on the preparation of graphical abstracts and research highlights; Uses sketches and other illustration styles to aid mental visualization of concepts; Contains practical examples taken from published papers and successful research grant proposals.

The Society of Text Edward Barrett, 1989 This collection of essays continues Barrett's investigations into implementing networked online systems described in his first book Text, ConText, and HyperText with a more focused emphasis on specific hypermedia systems. In four parts, the 22 essays take up designing hypertext and hypermedia systems for the online user; textual intervention and collaboration; new roles for writers and sensemaking and learning in the online environment. In his introduction, Barrett analyzes the design of networked online systems as part of a collaborative process, asserting that the online environment fosters collaboration by using computer technology to support interaction among those who design, use, and write software. The first five essays present a genealogy of hypertext development, assess various hypertext designs, discuss users' wants and needs, and analyze the rhetoric of hypertext applications in light of new models for computer-human interaction. Seven essays then take up new important online systems for information retrieval, document production, and training in the online environment. Included are a first-time full-scale analysis of the Athena Muse hypermedia system developed at MIT, the hypertext environment Intermedia developed at Brown, the University of Maryland's Hyperties, and the Educational Online System for document production and training technical writers, now in its second year of use at MIT. New roles for writers and productivity gains provided by online environments are the subject of the next six essays. The final four essays discuss instructional efficiency and the failures of instructional materials. Novel proposals are described for addressing the needs and strategies of learners for supporting cooperative work in creating, revising, and testing a software program for evaluating online help systems and for eliminating ambiguity in online text. The Society of Text is included in the Information Systems series edited by Michael Lesk.
